From the Editor

I was saddened to receive a letter regarding the vandalism that has taken place in recent weeks, not only on the village hall site but around Diseworth as well. It is less than a year since a similar problem was reported, and as I mentioned on this page at the time, it begs the question whether these facilities provided in Diseworth are deserved. The people who tirelessly raise the necessary funds must be feeling not only helpless, but hopeless, as they see the results of their efforts destroyed. I can only assume that these acts are carried out as the result of boredom. Wouldn't it be wonderful if the energy used in this way could be channelled into the purpose of fundraising - and maintenance - of these valuable amenities? Not only could the time be better spent, but the resulting sense of achievement would have a rewarding and positive effect.

On a happier note, there is much to look forward to in Diseworth in coming weeks. Friday 11th May sees a return to Diseworth of the hilarious game of Call My Bluff, organised and co-ordinated by Rosemary Harris. Guests will be greeted with a glass of champagne, followed by a delicious supper which will also include some delightful desserts see page 10 for details. This year's "Scarecrow Festival and Open Gardens" weekend is only six weeks away! Last year's popular event saw an increase, not only in the number of scarecrows on display, but also their ingenious designs. As the weekend coincides with the judging of the 'Best Village' competition, it would be fantastic if this year's festival could break the 2006 record and add to our chances in the Care in the Community category of the contest.

As previously announced, there is a vacancy for the position of editor of the Diseworth Dialogue. After 6 years in the post, and 3 years before that as assistant editor, I feel it is time to hand over to someone who has fresh ideas and can take the magazine forward. The Dialogue first appeared in 1995 thanks to the inspiration of Carly Snee who wished to produce a magazine that would bring the whole community together and provide a source of local news and information. From these small beginnings grew a substantial and successful publication that has won two national awards. In 2000, the Diseworth Dialogue was awarded 1st prize in a competition run by Country Living magazine. As Carly said at the time, this accolade was 'the icing on the cake' and she had achieved what she had set out to do, 'to draw the village together'. The valuable experience that I gained from Carly was put into practice in 1998 when I became assistant editor, and again in 2001 when we exchanged roles and I became editor. Our success in another national competition last year marked a further milestone in the magazine's history and is a legacy of those early aspirations of our founding editor. Carly's husband Jim, who is our chairman, has written on page 18/19 giving a brief job description and a breakdown of just who does what! As he points out, we do need new blood, new ideas and above all, renewed energy. I am planning to relinquish my position at the end of June although I will hopefully continue to be a member of the Dialogue committee and give unfailing support to my successor.

Dear Friends,

I write to you having just come in from my garden. I am what you would call a ‘fair weather’ gardener. I tend to venture outside only when it is dry, but this morning it was not the weather that motivated me, but it was the chance to meet some rather special new visitors. It all began a few weeks ago with a couple, who Barry and I would see on a regular basis, backwards and forwards looking for a suitable plot. Then over a period of time we secretly viewed an amazing home being built, it was beautifully constructed in the perfect place with excellent views over the garden. Although we couldn’t see inside this new home we knew something special was happening. Then a couple of days ago we heard chirping, but not two voices, but more. As not to intrude, we waited until today when, quietly, carefully, and respectfully we went to have a look, and what we saw was three new additions to the home, so we are now host to a feathered family of five!

Here in the garden I am once again in awe and inspired by the creativity of nature. The colours of the spring flowers are amazing and beautiful, which I have done almost nothing to contribute, as the previous owner of the house or my dad planted most of them. But most importantly that this place, without again, any contribution from me, was chosen to be a haven for new life! I cannot help but be reminded of the following,

“You did not choose me; I chose you and appointed you to go and bear much fruit, the kind of fruit that endures.” John 15: 16a

I have been chosen! Not only by my feathered friends, but also by Christ – now that is inspiring, awesome, and certainly something to think about!

I have decided to give up being a ‘fair weather’ gardener, as I intend in future to seize every opportunity to appreciate nature and Christ, by taking the time to step outside my backdoor, come rain or shine to be inspired!

With much love,
Your sister in Christ,

Julie Ann

Mystery Wedding

A few months ago Alison was approached about a wedding in Diseworth on Saturday 23rd June in Diseworth Church. Since then the person has not come back to her with any details of the wedding. They were positive about getting married at Diseworth and took away forms to complete. Can anyone shed any light on this? Do YOU know who this mystery person could be?

Bert Hennessey

Tuesday 10th April was just another day, until I learned that this was the day that Bert Hennessey had decided to take his leave from us.

Bert was born at a very early age and he took full advantage of the 84 years that were to be his for the taking. His was the generation to which us younger folk owe so much and who went through the agonies of war to give us what we have today. Like many of his age, he was modest about his wartime activities 'I chased Rommel across the desert on a motorbike' was about as much as he'd give away. He did tell me that he'd met 'Monty' once though but that was about it.

Bert came away from the war with a grounding in radio and radar technology and this led him into a career in aviation as an avionics engineer. After a spell with BOAC Bert joined British Midland Airways (as it then was) where he worked all the way through to retirement with them – which was how he came to live in Diseworth all those years ago. Work took Bert to many far flung places, not least Africa and the Middle East. A keen and very accomplished photographer, he had a wonderful portfolio of photographs of the markets, the people and other subjects which he caught in his lens. He had a tremendous eye for observation, for detail, for the unusual 'angle' and for the contrasts of light and shade. Many were the occasions that I tried to persuade him to submit his photographs for publication but he was always too modest.

Another of Bert's interests was his Morris Minor, he was a familiar sight pottering around the local lanes in said machine. There's no doubt that he spent more time on his car than on his garden!

Bert was a keen CAMRA member. In fact he was chairman of the Diseworth branch of CAMRA (although he would observe, with his inimitable and irascible dry sense of humour, that he was the only Diseworth member!). Never more than a social drinker, Bert insisted on taking his beer only from a glass with a handle. He was a passionate aficionado of Youngs beer. The Youngs a.g.m. was always an excuse for another pilgrimage down to London where Bert was a regular visitor to the brewery. There he was well known to both the staff and (as a shareholder) the firms owners. So much so that one of their show Shire Horses 'Bertie' was named in his honour. Indeed Bert was nationally recognised as the only person to have visited every Youngs pub in the country – probably most of them in his Morris Minor, quite an achievement!

Bert was also keen to ensure the continuity of village life and he had been a member of WINGS from its foundation. He was for many years the 'membership secretary', a duty that he took seriously and enjoyed, although his aversion to computers meant that he was forever carting around reams of paper!

To Bert's family, especially Loraine, and to his many friends, we send our condolences. His was a life to be celebrated, not a death to be mourned.

FAIR TRADE FOR ALL

Fair trade products have been in the news and quite high profile nearer home as farmers struggle to find any profit margin in milk, beef, or cereals. I know the situation isn't comparable with farmers in the Third World who don't know if they will be able to feed their families next week. At least most farmers here own at least some of their land and even tenant farmers have been able to put some money aside for retirement, but the scales have been tipping more and more towards tiny profit or no profit at all.

Farmers mostly live well, food on the table, and the bills paid, but the key issue now is that profit margins have become so tight as to be mostly none existent. More hours must be worked for less return as staff are laid off or not replaced because the business just cannot afford it. Most British farmers work an average of 12 hours a day 7 days a week, with few holidays.

A local farmer told me that while he was milking one evening, he calculated that his 120 cows were generating him a gross profit of £17.00 an hour.

That sounds quite reasonable until you take out the cost of the feed the cows were eating at £150 a tonne. The fertilizer to make the grass grow is similar money and other additional costs such as vets fees and diesel in the tractors are all expensive.

Any farmer going down this route of calculating his costs will be tempted to throw the calculator in the drawer or maybe in the bin because if he goes any further he will discover that he is working at a loss and for the love of farming and not for any profit at all.

In the dairy sector most milk producers are being exploited by the supermarkets, the average price being paid at the moment being about 17 pence a litre. Compare that to the price paid in the mid 1990's of 27 pence a litre. No wonder 3 dairy farms in the UK a week are going out of business. In fact British milk production is at its lowest for 12 years. Up to the mid 1980s, the Milk Marketing Board which was a farmer owned monopoly, negotiated with the milk buyers for a fair price to be paid to farmers. After it was broken up, the supermarkets started to force down the price, a trend that has continued ever since.

So if the consumer wishes to continue to buy British milk and dairy products, there is a need for the farmer to be treated much more fairly on their share of the retail price. The prospect of more and more milk coming in from abroad, and the disappearance of herds of cows from our rolling countryside seem a very sad prospect to me indeed.

Diseworth Wildlife

I've been throwing raisins outside my back door for a few years now, so that there is some fruit for the birds after they have eaten most of the berries in my garden. You'd be amazed at who comes to feed on them, the blackbirds, starlings of course, magpie, robins, sparrows, hedgehogs and the fox. I happened to see a young dog fox while the snow was here this year. We've got a light just above the back door. I switched it on this particular night and there he was – his colouring was magnificent against the backdrop of the snow.

Another visitor to my garden is Tom-Tom with his harem of four females (Tom – Tommy – Cooper – Fez Pheasant) He first appeared with another male pheasant and they were like two fighting cocks, flying up in the air towards one another, obviously fighting for their territory. Then came the chasing round the garden – they looked like two road runners and a bit like the ending of a Benny Hill sketch. Tom-Tom won and he now appears most days to feed on the dropped seed from the bird table, he's even brave enough to drink from the pond near the back of the house.

Tips and Reminders

How to make your personal property more secure

It is important to make sure that your home has security locks, for these will deter the opportunist thief. Ground floor and upper windows easily accessible at the back are favourite points of entry for the burglar. Window locks make it extremely difficult for the thief to break in without making a lot of noise. Good door locks not only make it difficult to break in but may also prevent the thief escaping easily without notice. Also remember to use locks on garages, sheds, out buildings and gates.

I am extremely shocked to see the state of the village hall car park and the childrens playground AGAIN.

The playgroup's sheds have been vandalised and all of their toys have been strewn around the play area & playground. These have all been vandalised and will now leave playgroup without any outdoor toys for their children to play on. These toys AND the sheds were bought using money that was raised by parents and staff of the playgroup.

A few individuals of the local youth with no respect for anything that isn't theirs have destroyed someone elses property and will leave some very disappointed children when they go back next week.

Also the playground has once again been the victim to more vandalism. On my recent visit, I discovered the floor covered in broken bottles and lager cans. There was also an area covered in ash where a fire obviously had been. It was also covered in the remnants of broken toys from the playgroup shed where they have been selfishly broken.

What is happening to our village???

EDITOR/EDITORIAL ASSISTANCE REQUIRED

The Diseworth Dialogue has now been running for 10 years. In that time we have had but two editors. Both have been responsible for bringing the magazine on to where it is today – recognised nationally as a ‘village’ magazine of genuine quality, both in content and in presentation.

Carly, our first editor was fortunate with the team who helped to shape the magazine and to be able to hand it over to Sue who has had the energy and inspiration to build on those foundations so successfully.

Sue, our present editor, is now looking to hand over the reins of further guiding and shaping the magazine for the future.

Behind the editor of the Diseworth Dialogue there sits a strong committee of committed villagers with much knowledge and experience and who are all more than willing and prepared to support whoever takes over from Sue Brompton.

The work of the magazine requires two ‘editorial’ meetings per month, normally of a couple of hours and one (evening) ‘collating and committee’ meeting, again of a couple of hours. We have a dedicated Chair, Secretary, Treasurer and Advertising Officer. We have a ‘professional’ in Ruth Smith to undertake our layouts and publishing. Our printing is outsourced. We also have a team of deliverers. All this means that the work is split and no one person carries too heavy a burden – least of all the editor (who at least gets the kudos!).

We are looking for a new editor! Could it be you? Are you interested in creative publishing. Do you wish to contribute to, and even shape, village communication and village life.

Do not hold back if you’re attracted to the challenge. We need new blood, new ideas, renewed energy. Our editorial heritage may feel a big role to fill but both Sue and Carly are still active on the Committee and help, advice and guidance is on hand.

Please contact either Sue Brompton on 850592, email sue@brompton.fsnet.co.uk or Carly/Jim Snee on 812345, email carlysnee@hotmail.com if you’d like to discuss contributing to the editorial input to the magazine in any way.

HEALTH PAGE

NAIL PROBLEMS

Our nails can suffer from various problems, especially as we get older and can be an indicator of deficiencies or problems elsewhere in the body. Brittle nails can result from nail biting and having the hands in water for long periods. It can also indicate a deficiency of zinc and some or all of the B group vitamins.

To strengthen the nails cut down on all junk food such as fizzy drinks, white bread, cakes and pastries. Reduce stimulants such as caffeine, alcohol and sugar. Eat some protein everyday as keratin, the main substance of hair and nails is a protein. Eat oily fish twice a week and include iron rich foods such as lean meat, liver, molasses, poultry and cereals regularly. Nuts and seeds are packed with natural oils that can help to nourish the nails. Especially good are hazelnuts, Brazil nuts, walnuts plus sunflower, pumpkin and linseeds.

Fungal infections turn the nails white and cause them to thicken, indicating that the immune system is at a low ebb. The herbs Pau D'arco and cats claw can help reduce fungus in the body. Soaking the nails in either calendula solution or white distilled vinegar for 10 minutes a day can be helpful. Applying tea tree oil to the nails can eliminate the fungus if used regularly. A diet free from yeast may be helpful, and taking tissue salt combination L can reduce the problem.

Ridges running longitudinally on the nails may indicate a lack of stomach acid or other digestive problems. Iron deficiency can cause nail problems and white spots can also indicate a deficiency of calcium and magnesium. Zinc can be found in nuts, seafood and seeds. Iron rich foods include lean red meat, poultry, cockles, raisons, almonds, liver and cereals. Eating pineapple and papaya can aid the digestion. To keep the nails healthy, massage regularly with olive oil or evening primrose oil as these both speed the growth of nail tissue.

WOMEN'S GROUP

Our meeting night fell on Easter Monday and was duly postponed until Monday 23rd April which naturally came too late to report on in the Dialogue. This left a golden opportunity to mention the summer programme.

Monday 21st May – later in the month again, a delightful garden visit to 'Brinkfields' at Seagrave. I saw this garden last year and it is an absolute gem. You should come along too! Meet outside the Village Hall, with some cars please, to leave at 6.30pm prompt.

Tuesday 12th June – yes Tuesday! Mr Straw's house at Worksop. An evening at the National Trust property arranged especially for our group, limited to 24 people. Members have the first option to book a place.

July – A social gathering in the village and August will be the annual barbeque

And there is more in the pipeline.

DISEWORTH BOOK WORMS

On 20th March we had a lively discussion about Douglas Kennedy's book State of the Union. Reception for the novel was mixed, but most who managed to complete the book enjoyed it. However, there were a few dissenters who disliked it intensely, and because of the style of writing were convinced that the author was a female!

Book Worms held its bi-monthly DVD meeting on 10th April, and viewed the Johnny Cash story entitled Walk the Line. This was a very poignant true story of a boy who was held responsible by his Father for his brother's death. All through his life he tried to gain his parents approval, and overcome the guilt of his early life. He went on to be a famous country and blues singer, but along the way became involved in the usual temptations of drink and drugs. Eventually he did find personal happiness and true success.

The next Book Worms film presentation will be 'The Queen' starring Helen Mirren. This viewing is scheduled for 12th June at Sandie's.

The next book review of Gordon Ramsay's autobiography 'Humble Pie' will be held on 8th May at Nikki Henings Not as previously advertised, at Sandie's.

LONG WHATTON & DISEWORTH PARISH COUNCIL

Notes from the Parish Council Chair

Our sponsored Theatre Production by Mikron in Long Whatton will have been and gone by the time you read this – if you came, I hope you enjoyed it. The exhibition at Charnwood Museum in Loughborough about the Lacemakers and John Heathcoat continues through May and June and should be well worth a visit.

The Speedwatch bid will be submitted when you read this – 200 signatures of support thanks to various outlets, particularly Pam at the Long Whatton Post Office, and six volunteers to train as speed gun operators (we could do with a few more please). It won't happen straight away, but it will happen.

Sadly our temporary Clerk, Lindsay Swinfield, has got herself a new and bigger job as clerk in Quorn, so we are currently advertising for a replacement. In under a year she got to know us and the villages well, and did her job with quiet efficiency. We will miss her and wish her well in Quorn.

We also miss Nev Cheetham, her predecessor, who as most of you know has been extremely ill, and though his recovery in general has been remarkable, he has been unable to recover his voice, and struggles with his voice box. We all hope improvement continues, and to mark his retirement the Parish Councillors are giving him a brief and informal send-off with a small presentation, in the Bull and Swan at noon on Saturday 12 May. Anyone who wants to join us to wish him (and his wife Cally) well would be very welcome.

The Parish Council has again entered Diseworth for the Best Village Competition. Judging will be in the third week in June (just after Open Gardens and the Scarecrow Festival, so the village should look pretty impressive). More next month.

DISEWORTH HERITAGE TRUST

Apologies to those who bought tickets for the beer tasting, which unfortunately had to be cancelled. We think we've refunded all purchasers whose names were known – if you haven't got your money back, let me know and I'll sort it.

31 May is the date when Heritage Lottery confirm our major grant (or turn it down, which can't even be thought about). Our latest sponsor is the Shepshed Building Society, who are going to furnish and fit out the Village Office in the Heritage Centre – a lovely generous offer. They also offer ongoing support: anyone with a savings account can nominate the Trust as their chosen charity, and each year the Shepshed will donate 0.5% of the total average balances. This may not sound much, but even before any publicity, we are going to get £250 a year – every year. So anyone with a Shepshed savings account (of any kind) – please consider nominating the Trust. There is no cost whatsoever to you, and details are totally confidential. All you have to do is write a letter. Please tell Meg Galley, our secretary, (01332 814454) if you are going to do it; we only want your name.

And if you are thinking of opening a new savings account – perhaps a mini-cash ISA – do please consider the Shepshed, who offer very good rates of interest, and if you do, don't forget to nominate the Trust.

Martin Hening

Are You Up for A Challenge?

This year the Kegworth and Hathern Team are joining forces with St Botolph's Shepshed to offer youngsters a chance to participate in outdoor activities.

Shepshed runs a Teamwork Club, which provides exciting and adventurous learning experiences in the outdoors, team coaching and life coaching for all young people (age 8-17). People from our Benefice have been invited to join in, with a view to running our own Club next year.

The Club focuses on the skills of good teams and team players and how they relate to Christian values and the life of Jesus. There will be a mixture of indoor instruction and coaching together with challenging outdoor pursuits.

On specific Saturdays (see below) it will run an outdoor adventure programme. In the morning members will be taken to Quorn Hall for archery/canoeing/climbing and raft building returning to Shepshed midday. Likewise for orienteering at Asfordby. The Grand Challenge at Rutland Water is an all day event in September.

Membership of Shepshed Teamwork Club is free. Each Saturday outdoor pursuit event will cost £3 - £5 per session, to be paid in advance when booking. The Grand Challenge costs £5. But don't let cost deter you.

We won't get fooled again!

There's a track on a Who album where they sing We Won't Get Fooled Again. It doesn't apply to the two Sues, and, as promised in last month's dialogue, this is the tale of how they did get fooled again!

It started out as two of us visiting our daughters who live in the North, but very quickly got hijacked by people who wanted to go wedding outfit shopping at an exclusive shop in Helmsley.

Suddenly there was eight of us going, which meant we couldn't use daughters' spare rooms, settees etc. Accommodation had to be found, which it was, in the form of two log cabins next door to each other (complete with hot tubs on the deck), which happened to be about mid-way between the two said daughters, who we then invited to join us.

This was the weekend where we agents were exposed to the magic knickers, which Dialogue readers might remember from the Mother Of the Bride article some time ago.

So, the weekend was always going to be eventful and the alarm bells had already begun to ring. Would this be the occasion when the two Sues tried to retaliate for the Centre Parcs escapade? We had better think of something as a counter-attack. We need not have worried!

We came up with a lottery scam. On any weekends away, we always have lucky dips in the Lottery for the equivalent number of people who are there. So I duly went out and bought ten lucky dips for the Saturday night. The scam was that we would tell the two Sues that we had won. Not the jackpot, that would be too cruel, but that we had got five numbers. The way we would do it was that I would pretend to send a text message to get the Lottery Results sent to my phone, when in fact daughter number two had been primed to send me the right numbers.

The day was going really well. The wedding outfit buyers had a very successful day, including the two Sues who actually managed to get a bargain as well. We had a nice walk in the countryside and then retired back to the log cabins for hot tubs, BBQ and of course copious amounts of wine. The two daughters joined us and the evening was hotting up. There was some feeble attempt by the two Sues to get us back but we were ready for them and it failed miserably!

Needless to say, everyone else was in on the scam, apart from the Sues. I pretended to suddenly “remember” the Lottery. I sent a text to daughter number two who text straight back with the “right” numbers. I asked someone to check I was not seeing things and the Lottery ticket and phone were snatched out of my hands by the two Sues and taken away for inspection. There was much checking and re-checking. How we all kept our faces straight I don’t know, but they were so absorbed by what they were doing they probably wouldn’t have noticed the odd grin being stifled.

Eventually there were cries of ‘YES!’, we had definitely got five numbers. The funniest thing was that one Sue (and she knows which one) had not paid me her pound so she hurdled the furniture and nearly knocked me over trying to get out to go next door to fetch it.

The next thing to do was to see how much we had won, which meant putting it on the TV. Would they check the numbers? No, all they were interested in was how much five numbers had won. It turned out to be about £2300 so £230 each. They were ecstatic! You would have thought we’d won the jackpot.

The celebrations began in earnest. How would we break the news that it was all a scam? How would they react? Things started to get out of hand when one of them started phoning all her family to tell them the good news. We decided this was the time to come clean. Their disappointment was soon replaced with laughter and I think a little admiration for the way we had got them once again.

Sue Foolers are afraid, very afraid...

Baby Talk :

What Children Say About Love & Marriage

How do you decide who to marry?

- You've got to find somebody who likes the same stuff. Like if you like sports, she should like it that you like sports and she should keep the chips and dip coming. Alan, 10
- No person really decides before they grow up who they're going to marry. God decides it all way before, and you get to find out later who you're stuck with. Kristen 10

What is the right age to get married?

- Twenty three is the best age because you know the person FOREVER by then. Camille 10
- No age is good to get married at. You've got to be a fool to get married. Freddie 6

How can a stranger tell if two people are married?

- You might have to guess, based on whether they seem to be yelling at the same kids. Derrick 8

What do your mum and dad have in common?

- Both don't want any more kids. Lon 8

What do most people do on a date?

- Dates are for having fun and people should use them to get to know each other. Even boys have something to say if you listen long enough. Lynette 8
- On the first date they just tell each other lies and that usually gets them interested enough to go on a second date. Martin 10

What would you do on a first date that was turning sour?

- I'd run home and play dead. The next day I would call all the newspapers and make sure they wrote about me in all the dead columns. Craig 9

When is it OK to kiss someone?

- When they're rich. Pam 7
- The rule goes like this: if you kiss someone then you should marry them and have kids with them. It's the right thing to do. Howard 8

Is it better to be single or married?

- I don't know which is better, but I'll tell you one thing, I'm never going to sleep with my wife. I don't want to be all grossed out. Theodore 8
- It's better for girls to be single but not for boys. Boys need someone to clean up after them. Anita 9

How would you make a marriage work?

- Tell your wife she looks pretty, even if she looks like a truck. Ricky 10
